Description

We all live different ways in life. Some are blessed with going down a straight and narrow path, and some are out there fighting for their lives. This book is about a young girl, Lisa, who separates from her parents and keeps running away from all the dysfunction in the home repeatedly. Even on the dangerous streets of Houston, Texas she relied on friends, boyfriends and herself to finish growing up. Always living in the panic mode, she still made her own path to survive. She was eight years old running away, then as a teen she threw outrageous parties, snuck on Greyhounds and rode across the country to Florida where her best friend was. Everything they did was wild and crazy! Lisa's life has been spared numerous times. She escaped a full blown hurricane, had truckers that took her miles away, was raped at age 16 and avoided murder, and walked free from a devastating car wreck after going through a windshield.

About the Author

Lisa Cooper attended the Art Institute of Houston when she was a teen. She got married at 20 years old and she became a mother of two girls. She was a single parent for a lot of her time until the marriage ended in three years. She got a cosmetology license and became a master-stylist for ten years.

Being creative sometimes makes you flighty because of being multi-talented in other things. At age 26 she moved out to Eureka Springs, Arkansas with her second husband. Suddenly gold mine of knowledge fell into her lap. She was trained by a hippie in a little shop on how to hand-roll cigars. Lisa's marriage fell apart soon and she took that cigar knowledge and ran with it! She went out and bought five evening gowns and dressed up one night. She called all the media to follow her. Starting in a brew pub she walked in with the press and started a show. All the college kids wanted flavored cigars and that's exactly what she made. She was on Fox 4 Morning Show, CBS Superbowl Sunday, The Cover Story of Star Magazine and The Aspen Business Times. (Much more).
