The Quotable Skeptic: Bits of Wisdom From Notable Heretics and Apostates Jehovah Yahweh

What do you believe, and why do you believe it? That is a question which many great thinkers have addressed, and it is time for the average man in the street to do so as well. This is the most COMPREHENSIVE collection of quotes on religion available. But this book is far more than just quotes - it is an invitation to think. Instead of just skimming through the pages the reader is challenged to read one quote at a time, digest its intent, and think about the deeper meaning. In fact, each of them is worth a hearty discussion... and perhaps even a fiery debate! There are over five hundred quotes, with hundreds of points of view represented - and all are thought provoking. The "heretics and apostates" include twelve U.S. Presidents, statesmen ranging from Marcus Aurelius to Napoleon, scientists like Stephen Hawkins and Albert Einstein, philosophers and thinkers such as Ayn Rand, Voltaire and Arthur Schopenhauer, and even a number of celebrities and humorists like Frank Sinatra and Andy Rooney. The thing which makes Quotable Skeptics different from other quote collections is it includes the thoughts of many religious icons such as Martin Luther, John Calvin, several bishops and clergymen, two Popes... and even God himself! To round things out there are a number of evangelists featured, ranging from Oral Roberts and Jerry Falwell to Creflo Dollar and Benny Hinn, and they may do more to indict their own cause than all of the atheists and agnostics. You will want to carry this collection everywhere you go as a handy reference. Read. Think. Analyze. Decide.
