The Fallen Files Mr. Gary S Pritchett

"That's it, I've had enough." An easily uttered phrase, we've all said it. How do you break free when demons are all around, and a Fallen Angel haunts your dreams? The Fallen Files documents a young Fire Fighter, Joshua Edward Waters throughout his troubled life...and his interaction with a Fallen Angel bent on telling everyone all the truths an enterity has brought him. This Fallen One teaches about Spirtual Warfare tactics, and is determined to help Joshua defeat the ever growing evil this world is subjected to. Josh has battled demons emerging from flames, and conquered each foe with style and Grace. The Fallen Angel becomes known as The Voice because of his reluctance to be seen, but certainly cherishes being heard...and shockingly is searching for eternal redemption. Joshua brings his adopted brother Caleb into the fray, and both become stronger by the day. Things are changing daily as they are forced to take to the road, as directed by The Voice. A dog and cat go along for the ride in the back of Josh's 1965 El Camino, and the Fallen One is never far away. They are all trapped somewhere between Heaven and Hell, but where will they wind up? The Fallen Files described in seven seconds: Our fire-fighter Joshua only wants to sleep. Scorched and exhausted, why should this night be different from any other? Morning's sunlight welcomes him to a brave new world of hidden wonders, demonic dangers, insane friends and a frenzied life bent sideways like an old car's antenna. All of this because Joshua's name is marked for deletion- but a Fallen Angel decides to turn him into a useful tool instead of wasted dust. This "Christian Sci-Fi" adventure will drive you right through all the tollbooths- lights flashing and sirens blaring- straight down this highway separating heaven and hell. The Fallen Files is a deeply layered spiritual metaphor wrapped in a supernatural conundrum: It doesn't matter that you "don't believe in anything" because everything believes in you.
