Wicked Water tells the fictional story of one family during the tragic 1999 season in North Carolina, when Hurricane Floyd whammed into Carolina. Floyd killed millions of farm animals and 51 people. It destroyed 50,000 homes in 39 counties---on and on go the bad statistics. In Kinston, NC, the Lowe family planned to drive to Maryland for a family wedding, and did just that--over the loud objections of Paisley (8) and her brother, Davis (11), who were right to worry about the weather. Luckily, the American Humane Association came in their famous blue truck. Well hidden in that truck was Mitchell--a fearless 10-year-old known as Mouse Cooper--whose dad was driving that truck. What Paisley, Davis, and Mouse Cooper did during that hurricane makes for an , poignant, and often humorous tale of people and animals who fight for their lives against the mindless force of winds and rain we call a hurricane. An Afterword gives fact of this massive storm. Ages 7-11.
