Excerpt from State Documents on Federal Relations: The States and the United States; Number II., State Rights and the War of 1812; 1809-1815

The spring election of 1813 resulted in the Federalists seeming control of both branches of the General Court, as well as in the re-election of Governor Strong. The Governor in his Speech: referred to territorial extension (re solve: of Mass. (1812 and the House in its Answer considered the effect of extension on the future in uence of New England. 238, Josiah Quincy, who had opposed the admission of Louisiana, in a strong state rights speech in Congress January 14, 1811, had declined a re-election to that body, but accepted a seat in the State Senate, and at once took the lead in opposing the policy of the Federal Government. He was Chairman of the Committee that drew up the Report and Resolutions relative to the extension of Territory, extracts from which follow. A Remonstrance against the war, June 15, 1813, also contained a protest against the extension of territory.
